Letter from Michael Davitt to Michael Cusack

London,
October 30th 1884.

My dear Mr Cusack,

Sorry I cannot attend the meeting which you announced for Thurles on Saturday. In any effort that may be made to revive a national taste for games and pastimes, such as once developed the muscular power and manly bearing of our Gaelic ancestors, I shall be glad to lend a hand.

In this, as in many other matters, we ought to cut ourselves adrift from English rule and patronage, and prevent the killing of those Celtic sports, which have been threatened with the same fate, by the encroachment of Saxon customs as that which menaces our nationality under alien rule.

There are, of course, many reasons why the physique of our people is not developed as it ought to be, but there is no doubt that one reason for the degenerate (sickly) gait and bearing of most of our young men at home is to be found in the absence of such games and pastimes as formerly gave to Irishmen the reputation of a soldier-like and self-reliant race.

Yours very truly,
Michael Davitt.

Letter from C. S. Parnell to Michael Cusack

Irish Parliamentary Offices,
Palace Chambers,
London SW.
December 17th 1884.

Dear Sir,

I have received your letter of the 11th instant. It gives me great pleasure to learn that a Gaelic Athletic Association has been established for the preservation of national pastimes, with the objects of which I entirely concur (agree).

I feel very much honoured with the resolution of the Thurles meeting, and I accept, with appreciation, the position of patron of the Association, which has been offered to me. I need not say that I shall do anything I can to render the working of the movement a success.

I am, yours very truly,
Chas S Parnell.

Letter from William O’Brien to Michael Cusack

United Ireland,
Dublin.
December 24th 1884.

My Dear Mr Cusack,

As you are aware, I have, from the beginning, taken a hearty interest in the movement you have so vigorously inaugurated for the revival of our national sports, and I shall willingly devote a weekly portion of United Ireland (newspaper) to assist you in spreading and popularising the movement.

Yours sincerely,
William O’Brien.
