SECTION 1: DOCUMENTS-BASED QUESTION

Ireland: Topic 3
The pursuit of sovereignty and the impact of partition, 1912-1949

Case study to which the documents relate:
Belfast during World War II

Study the documents opposite and answer the questions below:

1. (a) According to document A, what could lead to an outbreak of disease?
   (b) How has Hitler done the evacuees a service, according to document B?
   (c) Why are about 5,000 people ‘absolutely unbilletable’, according to document A?
   (d) According to document B, what has the Blitz shown? (20)

2. (a) Which document shows greater sympathy for the evacuees? Give reasons for your answer, referring to both documents.
   (b) Do both documents offer a solution to the problems they raise? Give reasons for your answer, referring to both documents. (20)

3. (a) Does Richard Dawson Bates present an objective report to cabinet in document A? Give reasons for your answer.
   (b) How does document B illustrate a strength and a weakness of a newspaper editorial as a historical source? (20)

4. What was the impact of World War II on the city and people of Belfast? (40)
The need to find accommodation for those evacuated from Belfast, during the Blitz, posed problems for the Stormont government. The Home Affairs Minister, Richard Dawson Bates, outlined the situation in a report to cabinet (13/5/1941). This is an edited extract.

The position now is that accommodation is completely full. There are 900 people in Lisburn, 2,000 in Dunmurry and 300 in Dublin. We have promised to remove them at the earliest possible moment, but there is no accommodation. The position is, therefore, as urgent as it can possibly be.

It is essential that we have Government House, Hillsborough, without delay. We must have large houses, institutions or camps for respectable families who are, at present, billeted in the country, in some cases at the rate of 30 to a small house, under conditions which they definitely cannot be expected to tolerate, and which will lead to an outbreak of disease.

There are in the country probably about 5,000 absolutely unbilletable persons. They are unbilletable owing to personal habits which are sub-human. Camps or institutions, under suitable supervision, must be instituted for these.

On 26/4/1941 the County Down Spectator had also commented, in this edited extract from a leading article, on the problems of evacuees.

The Blitz has brought home to us the amount of absolute destitution in the poorer quarters of Belfast. The poverty that these enemy attacks has exposed is a disgrace to our much-vaunted civilisation.

If the squalidness of many of the evacuees is indicative of the hovels that have been swept away in Belfast, Hitler has done these poor folk a service, so far at least as destroying their ‘homes’ is concerned.

We are suffering so much in common, yet we have a feeling that the downtrodden amongst us will have a better chance after the war.
